Great Flood Damage.

A Cloud Burst and Heavy Rain Fall

CAUSES GREAT DESTRUCTION.

A Number of Bridges Swept Away and Washouts Seriously Interfere With Railroad Travel—A Dam Breaks and Overflows the Brandywine River.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 18.—A cloud burst in upper New Castle county, Del., and lower Chester county, Pa., Monday night, and heavy rains yesterday afternoon have caused great damage. Three bridges on the Wilmington and Northern railroad above Coatesville, Pa., are all, or nearly all, destroyed, and more are expected to follow. No trains have been able to reach Reading, Pa., from this city, and none have arrived here. Several extensive washouts have also been made, and these localities will have to be trestled before trains can be run.

On the Landenburg branch of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, near Brandywine Springs, a big washout made it necessary to transfer passengers. The heavy rains will increase the damage already done to crops in this section. The Wilmington and Northern Railroad company reports the storm the most damaging that it has ever experienced. Men are working in an endeavor to get the road in order for traffic.

A Dam Gives Way.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 18.—The burst of the large dam belonging to the Kennedee Ice company, of Wilmington, Del., located at Hibernia, this county, burst yesterday morning and a tremendous amount of water rushed down the Brandywine, overflowing the banks and sweeping everything before it. The large bridge which crosses the Brandywine just below the dam was swept away and several frame buildings were carried down to Coatesville. Several of the streets of Coatesville are four feet under water. The people living along the stream were warned by the sound of the rushing waters and escaped to the hills. So far as heard from no lives have been lost. The flood had made the creek road impassable. In places the meadows are covered to the depth of eight and ten feet. The break was caused by a heavy fall of rain.

At McKeesport, Pennsylvania.

MCKEESPORT, Pa., Sept. 18.—The heaviest rain fall in years was experienced at this place yesterday. Streets were turned into rivers. Cellars and first floors of many public and private buildings were flooded. Two houses were overturned, while a number in process of erection were so badly damaged, it is believed, they will have to be reconstructed from the foundation up. Several of the streets are impassable. The tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio, Pittsburg, Virginia and Charleston, and Bellevernon railroads were washed out, and in several places obstructed by heavy landslides. So far as learned no lives were lost.

One Flood Follows Another.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Sept. 18.—This city was visited by another flood yesterday evening. Between 6 and 7 o'clock the water in Green brook rose four feet, carrying away the bridge on Somerset street, which had been weakened by the flood of a few weeks ago. Cedar brook has overflowed its banks and residents of Tenth street are greatly alarmed.

Although the Feltville dam is pronounced safe, timid people fear that it may break, and great uneasiness exists. Life ropes have been placed across Somerset street.

A Building Blown Down.

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—The upper story of a new two-story brick building at 968 Park avenue, blew down yesterday afternoon, and the four men working on the walls were thrown to the ground and buried under bricks and mortar. Two of them, John Robelia and John Kohl were seriously, perhaps fatally, injured. The building stands out on the open prairie where it is exposed to the full force of the winds. The strong west wind toppled over the wall on the west side, which had been left unsupported, and the bricks falling against the east wall knocked it over.

The Work of Train Wreckers.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 18.—The freight train wreck on the Central road near Hancock, last night, was one of the worst smash-ups ever seen in Georgia. It was evidently the work of a train-wrecker. Three men—Engineer John Jordan, Fireman Bob Natlen and Brakeman Parker—were killed. The soldiers of Fort McPherson barracks did good work in the search for the bodies. A passenger train was due at the point where the accident occurred, twenty minutes late.

Arrival of a Ship-Wrecked Crew.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 18.—The crew of the Norwegian bark Eliza Lines has been landed at Port Martland by the brig Edith Mary. The Eliza Lines, which left Pensacola for Buros Ayres on Aug. 8, encountered a terrible storm on Sept. 9. She soon began to leak and all hands on board abandoned her on the 11th, being rescued by the Edith Mary.

Fished on Sunday—Drowned.

NEENAH, Wis., Sept. 18.—Fred. Krohn and Frank Smith, of Fremont, were drowned Sunday while fishing. They went out early in the morning and as they did not return at night a search was made Monday, resulting in the finding of the bodies in Wolf river. Krohn leaves a wife and eight children and Smith a wife and two children.

SECRET MEETINGS.

Young Men Must Be of Age Before They Can Become Odd Fellows.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 18.—The Sovereign Grand lodge met at 9:30 o'clock and remained in secret session until 2:30 yesterday afternoon. The important business transacted was the discussion and action on the proposed constitutional amendment providing that young men 18 years of age shall be eligible to membership in the order of Odd Fellows. The amendment was lost by a large majority.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the Daughters of Rebekah went into National convention, which was called to order by Past Grand Sire Nicholson, who addressed the assemblage and introduced Mrs. Lizzie Phillips, of Cincinnati, O., president of the Ohio state organization of the Daughters of Rebekah, who delivered the address of welcome to the delegates.

Wool Growers and Manufacturers.

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—A largely attended conference of wool growers and woolen goods manufacturers from different parts of the country opened here this morning. Its object is to agree upon a satisfactory schedule of duties upon imported wool and woolens to be recommended to congress in connection with the proposed tariff revision. The indications are that a still higher rate will be demanded on the ground that the market is glutted with the cheaper product of English looms. There are a number of home manufacturers, however, that are catering to the demand for a cheaper grade of woolen goods and these will work hard to lower the protective tariff on imported material.

Great Loss of Fruit.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The steamer Vertumnus with fruit, from Jamaica for this city went ashore last night on Long Beach. All on board were saved. Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon and their two children, passengers on the vessel, were being taken off in a boat, when it capsized in the surf, but they were rescued by summer boarders at the beach, who plunged in and brought them ashore. Mrs. Henry Chapman, of Brooklyn, distinguished herself by saving a 3-year-old child in this way. The vessel will probably be a total loss.

Narrowly Escaped Lynching.

SPARTA, Ill., Sept. 18.—John McCully, who shot and killed Constable Crossen last Thursday, narrowly escaped lynching Monday night. The lynching party arranged and made preparations to attack the jail, when the sheriff was informed of what was taking place. He secretly took McCully out of a rear door and boarded the train for Chester. The lynchers heard of the escape just as the Chester train pulled out and rushed to the depot, but were too late. McCully will be kept in Chester until his trial takes place.

Floating in the Reservoir.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 18.—Early Monday morning the dead body of a white man was found floating in the reservoirs of the Sloss furnace. It was that of a very large man, fairly well dressed, but was so badly decomposed that recognition was impossible. The back of his head had been crushed in, evidently by a violent blow with some blunt instrument. The theory is that the stranger was murdered elsewhere some days previous and the body taken Sunday night and thrown where found.

More Race Trouble Feared.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 18.—Considerable excitement prevails at Calera, sixty miles north of this place, over a threatened collision of races. The trouble grows out of the discovery of an incendiary letter written by a negro, which revealed a plot against the whites, and urges the negroes to insurrection. A villainous white man who is at the bottom of the trouble is being sought for, and if caught will be hung. The marshal of Calera has wired here for three dozen Winchester rifles.

Grand Prize to an American Astronomer.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 18.—Information was Monday received that a grand prize prix and a gold medal have been awarded at the Paris exposition to Professor Rowland, of the Johns Hopkins university, for his photographic map of the solar spectrum, and his concave gratings. This is in addition to the grand prix and the medal awarded to the Johns Hopkins university for its publication.

Freight Handlers' Strike.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 18.—The strike of the New York Central freightmen for extra pay for Sunday work is still on. Freight Agent Clark says he will not grant the demands, and intends to pay off and discharge the strikers this afternoon. Track hands are doing the work now, but considerable freight has been delayed. The strikers are non-unionists.

A Collision on Water.

NANTUCKET, Mass., Sept. 18.—The schooner J. A. Parsons, from Bangor, for Bridgeport, Conn., collided yesterday with the schooner Zulette Kenyon, off Cross Rip light-ship, and sunk her. Capt. Ames, his wife, and the crew of the Kenyon were rescued by the schooner Mary V. Wellington and brought to Cottage City. The Kenyon is a total loss.

Colored People Asking Recognition.

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—About fifty colored men met in the Meionaon yesterday pursuant to a call inviting a conference of leading colored men of the state to assist in the organization of a movement to secure from the political party of their affiliation a fair share of its responsibilities, opportunities and honors.

Forest Fires in Maine.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 18.—Forest fires are reported in the Dead river region around Chain lake. Lumbermen of this city report their tracts free from fire. It is said that timber owned by M. G. Shaw, of Bath, is burning.

The Next Congress.

Some Lively Times Expected From the Start

BETWEEN THE TWO PARTIES.

Representative Bynum Interviewed on the Subject—Captain Armes Will Sue General Schofield—Other Washington Dispatches.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Representative Bynum, of Indiana, in an interview about the work of congress, said:

"I think that there will be a lively time from the start. We have a lot to worry the Republicans about, and we will very apt to make it interesting for them. I do not think they will do anything with the tariff."

"How about the rules?"

"They cannot change the rules so as to avoid the constitutional provision that a majority of all the votes shall be necessary to constitute a quorum, and with but one, or at least two more than a quorum, all told, they cannot hope to have enough members present at any time to carry through any radical measure. Of course we shall not interfere with the organization of the house, but they cannot do anything that our party is determined they shall not do."

Program of the American Congress.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—W. E. Curtis has returned from Bar Harbor, where he went to get Secretary Blaine's approval of the congress of American nations. Mr. Blaine, he says, is looking better than he has seen him in many years. He is not as fleshy as he was, but his color is healthy and his eyes bright. He is active and in the best of spirits. Mr. Blaine will be in Washington on the 29th of this month. The American delegates to the congress of nations will hold a meeting here on the 1st of October, and on the 2d the congress will convene.

Telephone Bell's Great Scheme.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Regarding the renewed activity of the Drawbaugh telephone people it is said the agitation is really a scheme of the Bell company to extend its monopoly for seventeen years. The Bell patents expire in 1893. If it be proven that Drawbaugh was the real inventor he will be granted a patent for seventeen years. The Bell people, it is claimed, have secured a controlling interest in the Drawbaugh investment and are themselves about to establish his right to a patent which will enable them to keep other inventors out until 1910.

Captain Armes Mad.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Capt. Armes threatens to bring suit against Gen. Schofield, who, as acting secretary of war, issued the order convening the board to examine into his mental state.

Director of the Mint.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—It is believed that Edward J. Leech, the computer at the mint bureau, will be appointed director of the mint, to succeed Dr. Kimball.

SAVED BY DARKNESS.

A Mob Attempts to Get Possession of the Nicely Brothers.

SOMERSET, Pa., Sept. 18.—The startling features of the Nicely boys' escape, the shooting of Deputy Sheriff McMillen and the subsequent capture of the desperadoes becomes more sensational every hour. The town was aroused at midnight last night by an attempt to rescue the Nicelys, but a heavy guard being around the jail a dozen or so shots caused the rescuers to disappear in the darkness.

The arsenal of nearly a dozen revolvers and several hundred rounds of ammunition found in the jail and on the prisoners continues to be the subject of great wonder. The revolvers were all new, apparently just out of the gun store, and were of approved Smith & Wesson patent. This morning a squad of blacksmiths visited the jail and chained some six or eight of the most dangerous inmates to the floor.

It has just been learned that the ram last night prevented an attempt at lynching of the Nicelys. It seems that several hundred farmers organized to march upon the jail for the purpose of taking out the Nicelys and a number of other desperadoes, including Lehr, of Pittsburg, and stringing them up. The extreme darkness of the night and a heavy rain tended to disperse the mob.

It is extremely hard to say what will develop within the next twenty-four hours. Much will depend upon the condition of Deputy Sheriff McMillan. He now lies very badly wounded, and should he die it will go hard with the prisoners.

Shot the Captain of the Watch.

MEMPHIS, Sept. 18.—Andy Mack, the colored "captain of the watch" on the steamer City of Monroe, was shot and killed Sunday night on board the boat while she was in the vicinity of Friar's Point, Miss., by an unknown deck hand whom he had brutally assaulted. The murderer escaped.

A Valuable Gift to Yale.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 18.—The will of the late Professor Elias Loomis bequeaths the bulk of the estate, which is valued at from $250,000 to $300,000 to Yale university, to be known as the "Loomis fund." This is the second largest gift ever made to Yale.

Fatal Explosion of Gas.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Sept. 18.—Alfred Crow and John Tocus were fatally, and John Murphy and William Calvin seriously burned by an explosion of gas in the Neilson shaft yesterday afternoon. The explosion was caused by the carelessness of Tocus.

GROWING MONOTONOUS.

Another Day and Still No Progress in Getting a Cronin Jury.

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—When court opened in the Cronin case, Judge Longenecker began the examination of the four jurors, Culver, Pearson, Levander and Schirling, tendered by the defense. Schirling was excused on general principles by the court. The state's attorney then began examining talesmen. Charles Baeder had an opinion and was excused, and Charles Tage was accepted temporarily.

There were plenty of jurors on hand. There was the special venire of twenty-five, who were summoned for 10 o'clock, and twenty-four jurors from the regular panel of Judge Clifford's court.

Yesterday was a disastrous day for the state in the Cronin trial. The examination of the jurors of the regular September panel showed Attorney Forrest's motive in demanding that they be summoned as talesmen. Two of them knew so little of the English language that they were excused on general principles. Others knew Coughlin or Sullivan, and still had no opinion as to their guilt or innocence. Eight peremptory challenges were used by the state in order to oust these mysterious talesmen from the box. The exercise of this right piled the state's peremptories up to thirty-six. The defense lost but one peremptory, making fifty-seven in all. The two men who were held for the night with Culver and Pearson are John Hall and J. W. C. Clarke.

The police deny that Cooney "the Fox," who is wanted in connection with the murder of Dr. Cronin, was arrested on Wednesday last at St. Paul, and secretly held at a police station in Chicago. They claim that they know nothing whatever of the present whereabouts of the much wanted man.

An evening paper says a letter carrier claims to have seen Le Caron, the British spy, in the postoffice here yesterday. The letter carrier was well acquainted with him when he was in Chicago.

NO BRITISH BEER.

The Story of an Organized English Syndicate Denied.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—"There are two elements of error in the story telegraphed from the west as to the formation of the American brewery syndicate," says Isaac Antermayer. "In the first place there is no such thing as an English syndicate to combat. The recent operation in breweries, which have been erroneously attributed to an English syndicate, are merely a rearrangement of various business operations in form of separate stock companies. They are quite independent of each other.

"They are just as much American as ever, so far as the management of the business is concerned, because the present owners are retained to manage the business, and the present owners are among stockholders; then as to the union of the St. Louis breweries, which has been referred to, that is in no sense a National movement. As to the alleged prospection to form a gigantic stock company with a capital of $100,000,000 to buy up every brewery in this country, no such plan is practicable. There has been some talk of it, but nothing approaching an agreement. The amount of capital invested in beer business and the great number of interests involved, make it highly improbable, if not impossible, to consolidate the whole business into one company."

At Deer Park.

DEER PARK, Md., Sept. 18.—Assistant Postmaster General Clarkson is now with the president. He came from Chicago on the morning train with Hon. W. E. Mason, who expects to call when Gen. Clarkson's interview is finished. Gen. Clarkson's object in calling was to submit the report of the commission which looked into Chicago postoffice matters and to lay before the president the present status of Chicago appointments. Congressman Mason avowed his purpose in stopping off. It is to urge upon President Harrison the appointment of Hon. Christopher Mamer as internal revenue collector and Gen. R. M. Pierson as appraiser at Chicago. Both of these appointments are apportioned to his congressional district.

Daring Highway Robbery.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 18.—The Journal's Ashland, Wis., special says: A daring highway robbery in broad daylight was committed on the streets of this city yesterday afternoon. An old German was walking with John Kirby and John Fisher, when they grabbed him by the throat and relieved him of $175. The highwaymen then ran, but were captured after several shots had been fired. Fisher escaped on the way to jail. He boarded a Northern Pacific train last night and was put off at Ashland Junction because he would not pay his fare. Then he fired several shots at the train, breaking windows, but hitting no one. Officers are in pursuit.

The Coal Syndicate.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 18.—Negotiations for the sale of the large interests of the Monongahela river coal operators to an eastern syndicate are progressing very satisfactorily, and it is pretty generally believed among the coal men that it will be consummated by Jan. 1. The larger operators will take stock in the proposed company. It is the intention, if possible, for the operators to control a majority of the stock and manage the affairs of the new company.

Smelters Strike.

PUEBLO, Col., Sept. 18.—The 200 employes of the Philadelphia smelter have struck for a continuance of eight hour instead of twelve hour shifts. The managers claim that when the eight hour shift was introduced last June it was with the understanding that the twelve hour shift would be resumed Sept. 15.

Echoes of the Strike.

A Few Slight Disturbances Take Place in London.

BUT NOTHING SERIOUS OCCURS.

The Dock Men Nearly All Back to Work and No Further Trouble Feared—Jack the Ripper Writes Another Letter. Other Foreign News.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—The advice of the leaders of the strike to the dock laborers to observe all the provisions of the agreement under which they returned to work, appears to have been effectual. Early in the morning the men appeared at the docks and generally went to work peaceably with the "blacklegs." Very few men assembled outside the docks, and they were quiet.

There were, however, some cases of disturbance. The strikers and "blacklegs" on the southwest India dock became involved in a dispute, and the men who had been on a strike drove the "blacklegs" out of the dock. The police interfered and quelled the disturbance. The strikers then withdrew and the "blacklegs" resumed work.

The troubles at some of the docks between the regular workmen and the "blacklegs" are not regarded as of serious import. They are only such minor disturbances as could not but be looked for as the aftermath of such a gigantic upheaval as the recent strike. They are the mutterings that follow, not those that precede a storm. It would be well nigh impossible to bring about either a lockout or another general strike, just at present. Both sides are too eager for a period of recuperation to indulge in an immediate renewal of the great struggle.

What the more remote future has in store, of course, cannot be predicted. Many friends of the laboring classes fear that they will be so elated by the present victory that they will overreach themselves ere long by some still bolder and less justifiable move than the late strike, and will thus lose the prestige conferred by the success attending the dock strike. On the other hand, great confidence is expressed in the good sense of Burns and his fellow-leaders, who are counted on not to lose their heads because of their brilliant and surprising achievement.

The friends of the dock companies having put forth various protests to the effect that the companies, not having earned even average profits on capital before the strike, must now be put in danger of bankruptcy on account of the increased pay of the laborers. The leaders of the strike have issued a reply to such statements, in which they deny the correctness of the figures given. They claim that it is only by a trick of bookkeeping that the profits of the companies are made to appear small and inadequate. In reality the profits are enormous, but this fact, it is alleged, is carefully covered up by an intricate system of accounts, and by a division of functions, whereby the owners of the docks debit themselves with rental charges large enough to eat up nearly all the earnings available for dividends.

Thus the bulk of the earnings go to royalties, and only an apparently small proportion to profits, though the same men get both, and it is a matter of indifference to them whether they get more or less of one than the other. The leaders claim, therefore, that the statements of threatened bankruptcy are deceptive. They also go further and deny the claim made by certain pessimistic commentators in the London press that the effect of increasing the expenses of the companies will be to force an advance of rates charged ship owners, and therefore to drive commerce from London to other parts. They express the conviction, on the contrary, that the increase of expenses will result in merely a reduction of the receipts of the companies and cannot be saddled upon the company's customers. In support of this argument Burns and Hyndman refer to such an eminent authority along the orthodox economists as Mr. Giffen, who laid down the law that charges against rent could not be shifted.

Jack the Ripper Heard From.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—The Central News is in receipt of a letter signed Jack the Ripper, wherein the writer promises to commit another murder in about a week. The handwriting of the note is the same as that of the letters and postal cards received by the Central News some time ago, in which the Ripper declared his intention to pursue his course until he should reach the number of fifteen victims, and there is no doubt of the letter's authenticity.

SUBJECT FOR LYNCHERS.

A Terrible Story of Cruelty and Suffering Comes From New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 18.—Louise Schoemaker, a pretty blonde girl of 15, disappeared from her parents' residence over a year ago, and no trace of her could be found until yesterday, when Sergt. Kenny, hearing that a white girl was kept prisoner in the rear of a barber shop on Felicite street kept by Gus Reed, a negro, went to the place and broke open the door which was locked. As he entered the rear door he saw the frail form of Miss Schoemaker, naked except for a tattered undergarment. Her face was pale as death, and her eyes shown with insane fear as she rushed toward the sergeant, and clinging frantically to him, cried piteously "Save me, save me."

Kenny, with difficulty, persuaded her that she was now in friendly hands, and the half-crazy girl finally became quiet. Assistance was summoned, clothing procured, and the girl properly cared for. She states that Reed had kept her locked up for over a year, subjecting her to constant outrages. Reed was soon arrested and locked up. The girl is much emaciated and apparently half starved.

A MISSING VESSEL.

A Steam Yacht With Nine People on Board Believed to Be Lost.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 18.—The steam yacht Leo left Black river, Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock, presumably for this port and nothing has been seen or heard of her since. A few hours after leaving the harbor a storm accompanied by heavy winds broke over the lake and it is feared that she was either unable to weather the gale or make any port and went to the bottom. She had nine people on board, and according to telegrams received by the Western Union company in this city, the excitement in Lorain and vicinity is high.

According to the "blue book," issued by the treasury department, the Leo is a small craft of about seventeen tons burden, and is owned by John Tuate, of Black river. Telegraphs have been sent to all Lake Erie ports, but up to the present time nothing that would throw the slightest light on her whereabouts had been received.

The names of the supposed victims are: John B. Tate, a well known merchant, formerly of Cleveland; T. D. Lawler, S. P. Ritter, Benjamin Kline, S. D. Knight, D. A. Lawler, Capt. Samuel Port; Fred. Pelow, an engineer, recently from Detroit.

A Fatal Freight Wreck.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 18.—A local freight train on the Auburn branch of the New York Central, ran into two freight cars on a dead side track at Brighton last night. The engine and four cars were wrecked, and Engineer MacGregor was killed. No one else was injured. The indications are that the engineer and fireman were asleep when they approached the switch.

TALK about Foraker's mistaken. It seems Mr. Campbell made a very large error himself in so unqualifiedly denying the fact of his connection with the English Brewery Trust.

DR. FERRELL, of Columbus, says "the day of the wind jammer has gone by in this country," and yet he contributes a column of rot about Foraker and Hatstead from a Republican standpoint. The doctor seems to be an old time bolter and should prescribe himself a dose of asafetida.

RACE wars between the whites and blacks are becoming more frequent and added to this unpleasant news are the statistics showing that the negroes are much the more rapidly gaining in population. But this subject, like that of the supply of coal giving out, need not worry this or the next generation.

ONE thing is funny about the Republican press. Up to the time of Tanner's resignation the Republican papers, as a rule, defended or praised him as the occasion required, but as soon as he was let go the situation very quickly changed and his "too much freedom with his tongue, etc.," was freely criticised.

COL. POORMAN, of Bellaire, has accepted the general Democratic challenge to discuss Ohio finances in joint debate, and agrees to meet any reputable member of the party in joint debate, on such terms as the two State executive committees shall agree upon. Let this debate come off by all means. It will have to be devoid of unexploded misrepresentations and the people of Ohio want unvarnished truth.

BISHOP FOWLER, a leading light in the Methodist Church, in a sermon at Chicago last Sunday, predicted that this nation's attitude toward the Chinese will be dearly paid for in blood some day. The Bishop's prediction is not so much pessimism as it is observation. He has just returned from a trip around the world and declares that the Chinese are active and thinking. The fact that the Chinese country contains nearly a third of the people of the earth gives some ground for fear, if they really feel revengful.

NO SMALL TASK

Steps to be Taken to Extend the Marion School District—A New Building Will Be a Necessity.

At the meeting of the board of education, Tuesday night, the petition of E. Conley et al. was read, asking for the extension of the Marion Public School district to the new corporation lines. Clerk Ault was instructed to notify the township school board to set its own date for a joint meeting to confer on the subject.

The extension asked for will undoubtedly be made, but the labor of redistricting involved throughout the township and many other matters are badly tealized. A new West Marion school building will have to be erected, with a capacity equal to the east building, and nearly all the sub-districts in Marion township will have to be re-arranged, for the extension will cut sub districts bordering on the old corporation lines so small that they must necessarily be changed.

WOMEN WHO WRITE.

Miss Grace Ellery Channing, granddaughter of William Ellery Channing, is known in California as a clever writer.

Anna Katherine Green, the so called American Gaboriau, has been writing tales and verse since she was 17 years old.

The Marchioness of Stafford contemplates publishing a volume of travels around the world made in company with her husband.

THE ANIMAL KINGDOM.

Two flocks of sparrows at Moundsville, W. Va., engaged in a pitched battle, and when they had finished eight birds lay dead upon the ground.

Henry Merritt, of Franklin county, Me., was peering into a stone wall for a woodchuck. The animal saw him first, and bit off the end of his nose.

A Stony Run (Pa.) cow has recently died from over indulging itself in a lot of pastry. A baker's wagon was upset in a stream and the cow ate several pies which floated down.

There is a man in Schenevus, N. Y., getting rich from a dog. He owns a canine which he has sold several times, but it always returns home, no matter how far it is carried.

Amongst the mackerel caught off the coast of Ireland was one which contained a large live toad, which, on being taken out, hopped about on deck, and seemed quite at home. Odd fish!

Farmer O'Brien, of Venango county, Pa., heard his pigs making a great racket and looked into the pen to see what was the matter. He discovered a five foot black snake. He gave it a blow on the head, and the pigs then pitched in and assisted him in killing it.

A Kingston horse, it is alleged, has a record of having gone ninety miles over a country road in one day. Then it became frightened at a train of cars, ran away, smashed the wagon to kindling wood, and came out of it all in a comparatively fresh and healthy condition.

For twenty-eight years Jos McKinsey, of Silver Creek, Mich., has owned two mares which were half sisters and were marked just alike. Last Thursday they were both killed by the same stroke of lightning, and after their twenty-eight years of service together rested in the same grave.

A story comes from White House, N. J., to the effect that one Weil, living there, while feeding a sick cow last November, lost a valuable gold ring. He thought the animal swallowed it. Last week the cow was slaughtered and the ring found, none the worse for having been in the quadruped's possession for over eight months.

A cat owned and raised by Mrs. Dr. Cunning, of Irwinton, Ga., is one half rabbit. Its head, front feet and front section of its body is like an ordinary house cat, while its hind part resembles that of a rabbit, its tail being short and perfect, and when not in motion will sit in the same position as would a full blooded rabbit. Is it admissible to remark right here, Rats?

A 15-year-old boy named Slavin had an exciting experience in the woods half a mile from the railroad and two miles from Scarpoose station, says The Portland Oregonian. He was hiding behind a fence trying to stalk a deer when a panther leaped from a tree and came at him. He fired his Winchester at the animal, and dropping it, took to his heels. He returned with his brothers in an hour and found the animal dying. It measured seven and a half feet.

Pedestrians on Eighth street, Philadelphia, were amused by the sagacity of a dog the other day. The animal was trotting up street when suddenly his muzzle fell to the sidewalk. He stopped, looked at it, and after a few attempts again got his head in the cage. But just as he started on his trot it fell off a second time. This was repeated four times. Then the dog, apparently realizing that it was beyond him to fasten the muzzle, took it between his teeth and ran on, his looks indicating the pride he felt in mastering the difficulty.

THE LATEST IN JEWELS.

Just now rings with sunk settings predominate.

Plain onyx nobs are earrings of a simple but fascinating nature.

Rings with pearls in diamond shaped settings are much in demand.

Hammered gold sleeve buttons with turquois clovers are of a neat character.

Lovers of the grotesque will favor a silver clown done up as a vinaigrette.

Dull gold diminutive barrels, with diamond hoops, form very attractive scarf pins.

A pleasing style of hair pin top is a dull gold ball pierced by a bar with opal ends.

The unpretentious character of pearl necklaces constitutes three fourths of their charm.

A knife edge wishbone, set with diamonds and rubies alternately, is a charming addition to brooches.

Conspicuous among gents' lockets is a representation in gold of a tree stump, which opens at the side.

Two interlocked loops of gold, across which runs a row of diamonds, composes the neatest of hair pin heads.

An exceedingly cunning idea in queen chain pendants is a moonstone infant's head under a bonnet of gold wire.

A semicircle of sapphires above an enamel and diamond forget-me-not is an attractive scarf pin of late issue.

A tastefully designed hair pin top is an upright coil of rope in gold, with a vertical row of emeralds sunk into it.

A moonstone owl upon a background of blue enamel in a circular gold frame is a brooch oddity recently seen.

White enamel neckties encompassed by diamond scarf ring, are among the quaint productions in scarf pin tops.

A dainty conception in lace pins is a filigree gold star with diamond center, set between two crescents pointing inward.

A gold queen chain pendant that simulates an open book, bound around by a narrow ribbon of rubies, may without fear be styled unique.—Jeweler's Review.

The culinary jugglers can now employ their art to transform English sparrows into reed birds on toast.

The annual statement of the watermelon industry in South Carolina shows that the area planted was 5,000 acres.

Ambrosia is made by filling a deep glass dish with alternate layers of pineapple, oranges, bananas and peaches, with plenty of powdered sugar sprinkled over each layer.

The Great Preserver.

Miss Trimount—And to think that after all these thousands of years there should be so much water in the sea! One would suppose it would have dried up long ago.

Miss Kornpacklr—Yes, that's so. But then, you know, it has heaps of salt in it, and papa says the way salt preserves things is wonderful.—New York Sun.

A Well Conceived Reason.

Miss Plantagenet De Vere—That man's attentions to me are most offensive, and he has the reputation of being a fortune hunter. Do you suppose it is papa's wealth that allures him?

Miss Dolly Flicker (thoughtfully)—Why, what else can it be?—Life.

Light on a Mystery.

One often wonders why such a large number of idlers always surround every excavation or new building in the central part of the city, but an explanation given by one yesterday sheds some light on the mystery. A man who sat on a block of stone carefully watching the work on the nine-story building attracted the attention of one of the bosses, who said:

"I have seen you around here most of the time for the last two months."

"Yes."

"Are you drawing wages?"

"Oh, no."

"Is it a relative of yours who is building?"

"No."

"Going to rent it when finished?"

"No."

"Getting points in architecture?"

"No."

"Well, then, what brings you here?"

"Well, I'll tell you. It struck me that you were not making that front door wide enough by an inch and a half, and I've been sitting around to see whether I was wrong or you meant to change it."

"That door is all right, sir, and won't be changed."

"Is it? Then there's no longer any need of my presence, and I'll move up street and see if they carry the wallets of that new store up plumb."—Detroit Free Press.

He Didn't.

"Bub," said a stranger to a bootblack on Larned street, "didn't you black my shoes yesterday?"

"I guess I did."

"Right over in that doorway?"

"Oh, yes."

"Well, when I paid you didn't I give you five $5 gold pieces to mistake for pennies?"

"Not much you didn't."

"Be honest now."

"I am honest. D'ye suppose that if I'd got my hands on $25 I'd be here now? Not much! I'd be flinking for the plains on a palace car, with a revolver on each hip and a fuss over my right shoulder, and by to-morrow you'd see in the papers that I'd run across old Sitting Bull and made him so tired that anybody could pull his nose. Made a mistake! You bet you didn't!"—Detroit Free Press.

The Husband's Letter.

Yes, I'm filling, dearest, filling
Cans you kindly hide me duty
In the weary time I'm wasting
Till I can go on to you.

I am filling in the moments
With what need of my I envy,
And I hope your days are pleasant,
And I beg that you will stay.

I am doing pretty well, dear,
And you mustn't mind the luck
That is everywhere around me.
Yours unalterably, Jack.

Come right in, boys! I'm all ready;
Here's your deal. I'll draw three, there
(Just now, dear, you'd find me filling
To a very jolly pair.)

—Aristine Anderson in Detroit Free Press.

Jimson—Well, we are getting along to the healthy season.

Jamson—The healthy season? What do you mean by that?

Jim—Well, you see, the baseball season will soon be over, and when it is over not one half—not one quarter—of the relatives of office boys and clerks will die as died during the time it lasted.—Boston Courier.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

Some of the Ups and Downs of the Advertising Agent.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The work of soliciting advertising and the placing of contracts for such is generally considered of a serious nature, of a strictly business type, but, like everything else, it has its funny side, which, however, is often difficult to discern. To some of the hard working and frequently unsuccessful solicitors the humor may not be very apparent, but there are times when it will crop out, and this when it is least looked for. As he is everywhere, the advertising solicitor is often a victim of mistaken identity, but with shrewd tact he generally makes all that can be out of such slight errors. It is, however, frequently the case that he gets the worst of other people's misunderstandings and finds his cup of joy dashed to pieces, and especially when it is discovered that, instead of being the right chap, he is the other fellow.

A successful example of being the correct person was that of an advertising schemer who was soliciting cards for a business directory (?) that was to occupy a prominent position in a Boston hotel, but which in reality would, no doubt, be hung in some obscure and out of the way nook, being really worth to the advertiser about five cents per square yard, while it cost him $10 per square foot to occupy its space with his announcement. After a day's work in which nothing crowned the schemer's efforts but continued failures, the young man determined again to try a Washington street clothier whom he had, on previous occasions, victimized, and upon whom he had called the previous day relative to his present fake, only to be put off "until another day." It seemed that the hour at which he entered the manager's office was that set aside for an interview with a party who was to place a large order for the making of military uniforms.

His announcement that he called to close that contract, and the fact that his features were taken for those of the man wanting the uniforms, secured for him an attentive interview. The clothier was anxious to complete the deal, providing that the prices were satisfactory, having in his mind the figures which he had given for the making of the soldier clothes. The young man informed him that the prices agreed upon the preceding day were those he would expect to close upon. At this juncture an important matter came up, calling the manager of the house to his bank, and the closing of the contract was left to his confidential clerk, who happened to have been present at both interviews, and had heard matters discussed with both the advertising man and the patron desiring the uniforms; but, as nothing had been said about the uniforms, he naturally inferred that the present conversation concerned entirely the closing of the advertising contract, and informed the head of the house that he understood the matter and figures entirely.

Being authorized to close the matter and place as large an amount as possible the confidential clerk selected about all the available space that was left on the hotel directory and signed the same at good rates. Scarcely had the "ad" man departed ere the head of the house returned and asked the clerk if he had closed a tight contract for the getting up of the uniforms. He replied that he had not seen any person with reference to the military toggery, but, as directed, had made a fine selection of space in the hotel directory. As the price had been already agreed upon between the manager and the solicitor the transaction was closed upon that basis, but he thought the figures were rather high. Explanations followed, and it was found that instead of the contract for making uniforms for an entire company the house had been singed to the amount of seventy dollars by the same fellow who had done them up on a former occasion, and that instead of the uniform man it was the other fellow they had been dealing with.

The following story is told of one of St. Louis' best known old time newspaper managers. The gentleman in question had just returned to his desk, after an unsatisfactory interview in the composing room with the "father of the chapel," as the representative selected by the printers whose duty it is to present any grievance that demands adjustment or settlement from the business manager is formed. The controversy had been over a proposed reduction of the scale of prices under which the typos were then working, and the "chapel" had got the best of the argument. As the manager sat at his desk, brooding over his failure in reducing the wages, a representative of a Massachusetts patent medicine company introduced himself and stated that the scale of prices for advertising space was entirely too high to permit of his placing an annual contract.

The manager informed the medicine man that it was not his province to change rates, and that he must see the advertising man about it. "But he referred me to you," rejoined the advertiser. "I can't break the scale," replied the manager. "Well, is there any one about who could lower rates?" queried the man of patent nostrums. "No! unless it be father of the chapel, and you will find him a pretty tough customer to move," put in the head of the business department. "I don't care whether he is Brown's, Jones' or Chapel's father, just so I can get about five minutes' conversation with him, and place my contract for the 'Never Failing Cure All Remedies.'" "Well, you can go up into the composing room and tackle him, but, as I said, you will have a hard time to change him from any of his notions. Good day!" But scarcely had the latter words been uttered ere the manager found himself alone.

Breathless, after a climb of four flights of stairs, the eager young pill representative put his head in the composing room and remarked that "he wanted the chapel man," and an elderly compositor, who looked as though he were just recovering from a protracted spree, was pointed out to him as the personage. With an air that betokened business, and that strictly, the new comer approached the father of the chapel, who was just then busy distributing a handful of type, and asked him if he was Chapel. Being assured that such was the case, the young man, without more ado, announced that the scale of prices was too high, and must be lowered. Thinking that the manager had sent up a fresh representative to work up the reduction of their wages, Chapel decided to make short work of the matter, and so informed the young man that there was no use of talking for reduction, for the boys would strike, and he further intimated that he might throw down stairs any one who should talk about cutting the scale. Wishing to avoid violence, the patent medicine man returned to the office and made a contract at full rates, remarking that for eccentricity and bull-headedness that Old Man Chapel came a little ahead of any one he had ever run across on the matter of sticking to scales.

THE WASHINGTON GIRL.

SHE RIDES THE BICYCLE WITH BEWITCHING GRACE.

Gossip About Some Famous Beauties—Ex-Secretary Belknap and His Wife—Secret Agents of Foreign Governments in Washington—Frank G. Carpenter's Idea.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The Washington girl is much talked about. In the opinion of many observers the Washington girl is pretty. A noted traveler and connoisseur in female beauty said to me the other day that one could see a greater number of pretty girls in Washington than in any other city he had visited. I fancy the Washington girl is able to make such an impression as this because she is so fond of showing herself on a bicycle. A woman nowhere looks prettier than on a wheel. The machine, graceful in itself, adds to her grace. There is just enough independence about the exercise, just enough novelty, to make the picture piquant. Even a plain face and indifferent figure look well on a wheel, not only because you do not see the face too closely, but because the figure is loosely clad and the motion one of spirit and charm. I believe if statistics bearing on the subject could be procured it would appear that the girls who ride bicycles marry younger than the girls who do not ride bicycles.

Washington girls set the fashion in bicycles for the entire country. They were the first to abandon the somewhat awkward tricycle and take to the more comfortable and graceful "safety." That this was a machine which its rider had to bestride man fashion did not in the least disconcert them. Having mastered the art of riding with skirts hanging modestly and becomingly on both sides of the frame of her steed, having learned how to wear loose blouses and the prettiest of flannel skirts, to let a few ribbons and a few loose locks of hair flaunt bewitchingly in the wind, to attire small feet in graceful and summerish russet shoes that describe short circles on the pedals with a mischievous sort of peeping in and out—having mastered all these arts the Washington bicycle girl has sighed for more worlds to conquer, for other means of reaching the masculine heart.

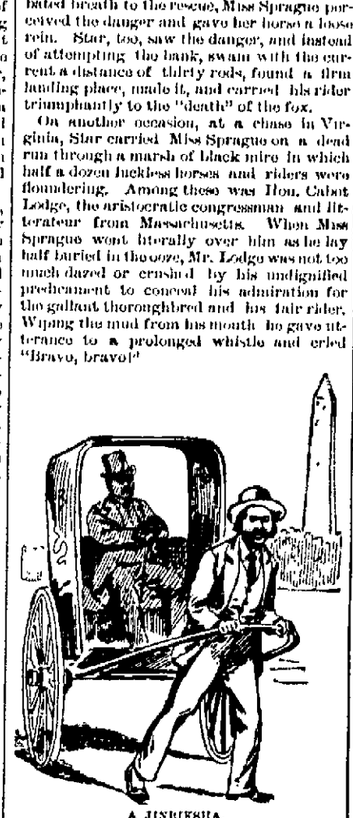
A PET ON THE WHEEL.

I wonder if the latest fad of this bold, unique girl will be also imitated by the lady bicyclists of other cities. What think you of taking one's pets out for an airing on the noiseless, swift running wheel? This is the latest of the Washington girl. A pretty and novel picture she makes, too, with her parrot perched on the hand bar in front of her, or with her pet cat or pug nestling confidently upon an improvised bed attached to the same bar. I will not strain the truth by saying that parrots, pugs and pussies are frequently seen flying through the streets on bicycles propelled by their mistresses. As yet they are but occasionally seen, for the fad has just started. It is, however, a fad sure to grow in favor, and being capable of almost endless variation, there is no telling to what idiosyncrasies or extravagances it may not lead. Ere long, I suppose, the Washington bicycle girl will carry with her, dressed in livery and perched sedately on behind, a miniature footman in the person of a very small colored boy, whose duty it will be, besides looking cute and stylish, to run errands, guard the steed when it is not in use, and to help push the same up hills and over rough places.

One of the pretty women of Washington, one who was once a reigning belle, has, by the way, been creating quite a sensation with her bathing costumes at Manhattan beach. Mrs. Gen. Belknap is still a beautiful woman, though old enough to have a daughter in society. The now somewhat gloomy and deserted corridors of the Capitol are queer places to go for gossip about pretty women, but in passing the rotunda one recent day I paused to ask Clara Morris a question. Clara Morris is the old woman who keeps the photograph and curio booth near the great rotunda. She has been there for a quarter of a century or more. Once a beautiful woman herself, enjoying the courteous attentions of famous senators and cabinet officers, she has seen and casually known all the capital belles of her time. When I asked this keen observer who was the prettiest woman seen in Washington in her day, she promptly replied: "Mrs. Gen. Belknap was, in her prime, the most beautiful woman I ever saw, in Washington or anywhere. She was perfect. Next to her, I think, was Mme. Catacazky, wife of a former minister from Russia. Poor Mme. Catacazky! She was so handsome and bewitching that the wicked gossips couldn't let her alone, and they talked so much about her and a certain cabinet officer that the Russian government recalled her husband, and shortly after returning to Russia the poor girl died of consumption."

Mrs. Belknap is not often seen in Washington society, where she once reigned queen. She has, however, a handsome home and an interesting family of daughters. Her eldest daughter, Alice, inherits her mother's beauty. Gen. Belknap himself is one of the well known figures of Washington. It is a rather remarkable figure, too. Though to some extent ostracized socially, and wholly out of the political current and cut off from the fellowship of the leading men of the day, Gen. Belknap is very happy. There doesn't appear to be the least bit of pique or sourness in his composition. Very prosperous in his business of claim agent, of course he has plenty of money and many friends. He makes the most of both, entertaining liberally and keeping up a continuous good fellowship with men of his sort. Most men would have been crushed by his experiences in public life, but Gen. Belknap appears to have forgotten that it was the scandal in which he was involved as secretary of war, combined with the whisky ring scandal, that so nearly caused the overthrow of his party in 1876. He is round faced, jolly, a story teller of note, a good friend to his friends, and exceedingly fond of a champagne dinner. Though it is the gossip of the town that it was his wife's extravagance that brought on his troubles, he is devoted to this wife, is proud of her beauty, and to this day gratifies her every wish.

The Russian government's peremptory recall of Mme. Catacazky's husband some years ago is not all of that story. A portrait of this beautiful and unfortunate woman hung on the walls of the Corcoran Art gallery for some time after her death. Suddenly it was removed, just why no one appeared to know. I am told that the picture was taken away at the request of the Russian government, which thus pursued the woman into her grave. How do the foreign governments learn of all these things of interest to them in this city? Through their ministers and attachés of legation? Not always. It is a fact not generally known that a number of foreign governments keep at the American capital secret representatives, themselves Americans, whose duty it is not only to watch the American government, but to keep an eye upon the ministers and legations sent here by their employers.



A JINRIKSHA.

As usual, on this occasion Miss Sprague was first at the finish. She is 19 years old, and will make her debut on the stage within a few years. For the stage she has natural talent, which is being developed by study and training. Miss Sprague has not inherited all of her mother's beauty, but she has good features, a magnetic voice, fine eyes, and, what is better than all, her mother's will power and genius. ROBERT GRAVES.

A Change of Sentiment.

Miss Mabelle Hartless (reading letter)—Why, mamma, this letter is from Cousin Fred, and he says that Uncle David Whyte is dead.

Mrs. Hartless—He is, eh? Well, it's a small loss. The stingiest old skinflint on earth! I never could endure the man!

Mabelle—But, mamma, just listen—he had his life insured for $10,000 in our favor!

Mrs. Hartless—He did! It can't be—dear, good old soul that he was! I always knew he was kind at heart. Ten thousand dollars! We must go into mourning at once!—Drake's Magazine.

—The improvements at the fair grounds are progressing nicely and will be done in ample time for the coming, great exhibition. Patrons have already begun, and exhibitors will hurry them along, so as to exceed any record of former years.

—Upper Sandusky papers are already talking of glass factories. If the new concerns will make glassware they will find an encouraging home trade. In this city Upper Sandusky has always been famous for her glasses—on the bar.

—The Bucyrus Telegraph says "The Marion school teachers wear diamonds," doubtless having noticed that one of the teachers had her ring stolen. You bet they wear diamonds, Bro. Hopley, and a finer looking lot of ladies do not grace any city. Marion is famous for her handsome "school marms."

—Attorney C. C. Fisher began mandamus proceedings in Circuit court today, in behalf of James Lawrence, to compel the village of Marion to award the contract of grading and macadamizing Patterson street to Mr. Lawrence, whose bid for that one street was about $80 lower than the figure at which the contract was awarded to Mr. Kelly.

—Mike Hagan still continues to be a much-wanted man by the police force and, although a number of schemes have been employed and exhausted in a fruitless endeavor to catch this slippery individual, he has succeeded in dodging them in a successful manner. He sent word to the mayor indirectly that he would put in an appearance Tuesday evening and give bonds for his appearance before the grand jury, but his appearance has been waited in vain and the police are still on the lookout.

—Upper Sandusky Union: Hon. George B. Christian, wife and daughters, of Marion, spent Sunday in this city, guests of Col. Avery Henderson. Mr. Christian looked upon our great gusher in full bloom, Sunday afternoon, and was enthusiastic over the exhibition. He said we had not exaggerated our monster in the least, and that it was all and more than we claimed. He said there was now nothing in the way of Upper Sandusky but triumph after triumph. Mr. C. is one of the prominent live men of Marion, and although yet comparatively a young man, has done more for the substantial prosperity of Marion than any other dozen men in the place. He is at the head of the great lime works and stone quarries of our neighboring city.

A Great Lemon Dodge.

[Van Wert Daily News]

At the county fair last week hundreds of men were sucking lemons. To the person not posted on tricks that are vain this appeared to be a health precaution, but to the boys who knew what was going on it was more amusing than the races. These lemons were sold by a moonshiner. They were made of pressed paper, the same as pails, and looked for all the world like lemons. But when the little tip on the end was gently removed, there was the forbidden fluid. A small, smooth lemon with a square drink under its hide cost ten cents. A big, rough specimen of the fruit cost fifteen cents. If your lemonade was not sour to your taste, you gently squeezed your lemon.

One of the managers heard of the lemon scheme and determined to break it up. He went to the dealer and bought a sample of the fruit and in triumph cut it open. To his astonishment, he had a genuine lemon. He made three additional purchases and each time got a lemon. The moonshiner was not only posted, but was prepared for emergencies.

The Union Block.

The work on the new Gracely and Schaffner building is progressing finely. The brick walls are now completed and a force of carpenters are busy putting down the floors and in the other woodwork. The main portion of the building will be ready for occupancy in about six weeks, and the apartments Mr. Gracely is having finished for his own use will be done much sooner.

Bricklaying has been commenced on an addition 30x18 feet, which is being erected by Messrs. Schaffner and Munsinger. This addition will be two stories high.

Joe Smith, a hod carrier, has accomplished the feat of carrying alone all the mortar needed in the erection of the building.

Circuit Court.

The September term of circuit court opened this morning with Judges Moore, Beer and Seney on the bench.

There are fourteen cases on the docket for hearing before the court.

The session opened with the case of the C., H. V. and T. railroad company vs. Dennis Breen, administrator, taken up on error. This is the case in which a jury awarded a verdict of $5280 against the railroad company for the killing of Thomas Breen, while at work as car inspector.

Another Race Added.

Another race has been added to the speed race for the coming fair. The managers have decided to have a three year old trot on Wednesday afternoon, of the fair. The society will give a purse of $25, and five are to enter at $5 and four to go. This makes the stake $50, divided into $20, $15, $10 and $5.

The speed list is now so extensive that lovers of racing will be fully entertained every afternoon of the fair.

Cheap Excursion to Detroit, Mich.
